

Silclear

Revolutionary one-piece liners

- the natural progression for the Silclear product range!

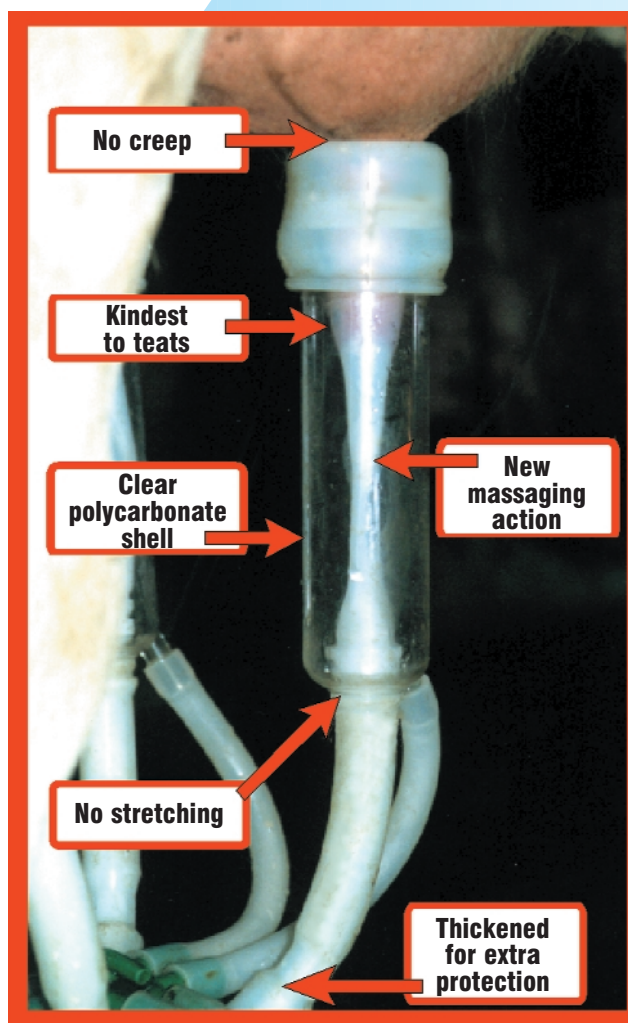

After extensive research and lengthy on farm tests, we are proud to introduce the Silclear liner. Designed to give maximum comfort to the cow and to minimise the incidence of mechanically caused mastitis, the Silclear liner works gently, but efficiently for fast, effective milking.

The special design features of the Silclear liners mean that:

- They do not 'creep', so they do not cause damage to the delicate secretory tissue at the base of the udder.
- Maximum comfort for the cow is achieved by the tapered pre-collapsed section, which closes gently to massage the teat instead of the more usual 'snap' shut action of other liners.
- When milked using Silclear liners, teats are not subjected to trauma or bruising, which means less teat damage and less fidgeting during milking!
- The soft, supple teat orifice ensures that all sizes of teat can be accommodated and milked efficiently and effectively.
- There is nothing in the Silclear silicone material to cause teat sores or lesions to the delicate teat skin tissue.
- The special high strength long life silicone compounds we use in the manufacture of the Silclear liner mean that they are tough, strong, long lasting and are very cost effective.

Additional major benefits to be gained from switching to the combined use of the Silclear liner and Silclear shell are

- Milking rates of individual quarters can be monitored and any deviation from the normal performance for that cow can be acted upon without delay.
- Cows are milked out very efficiently at a reduced clawpiece weight. The liner design eliminates the need for unnecessary weight, so reducing udder sag and distortion, thereby enhancing the cows' working life.

Silclear Liners

- have been on test for over a year and this is what our customers say:-

"The Silclear liners are going really well – the thing that impresses me most about Silclear is how much money I am saving! At first I thought they were expensive, but they last a lot longer than any other liners I've used, and my cows' teats and udders have never looked better. I think they are really good value for money, and would recommend them to anyone".

John Norris, Frome,
Somerset, UK
(100 x cow herd)

"The main benefit we and our staff find is how light they are to handle. The other main advantage is being able to see blood straight away. If the cups are on longer because you have got distracted, the teats do not go purple and discolour! We changed one side of our dairy over in August 1999 and those liners will see the 2002/3 season out, so they have done approximately 18,000 milkings which is fantastic. Not only has Silclear worked out really cost effective, herd teat condition has been very good. We are teat spraying too and we have not had to put up with perishing. We are happy to recommend Silclear to anyone who wants to try them."

M & J King, Taranaki, NZ
(32 unit herringbone)

"The Silclear liners are easy to clean, and really light to use. The whole family agree that they feel less fatigued at the end of milking than before, and the cows seem more comfortable too! Teat condition has never been better, and being able to see what is happening with individual quarters during milking is a great help. I didn't realise how much information I was missing before I started using Silclear!"

Don Griffin, Hinckley,
Leicestershire, UK
(130 x cow herd)

"I used to have a sore shoulder due to an accident and had to rest with the old heavy units. Now it is a lot easier – and the pain has subsided in my shoulder. There is no worry now, the pain has gone. My wife tells me that in comparison the Silclear liners are light as a feather! Margaret also used to get sore arms lifting, but now it's a breeze. We used to have cows with cracked teats, and now we have no teat condition problems at all. The extra benefits are mainly how light they are and how well the heifers take to them. They seem to accept them far more quickly – I guess they do not have the weight dragging on them. It is excellent to see blood in a quarter or a bent teat, and the shells are nice and strong.

I did not realise how tough they are."

G & M Lewis, Northland, NZ
(20 unit rotary)

"The Silclear liners are very soft and gentle on the cows – they are lighter, there is no pulling, and the heifers are no problem at all. I like being able to see what is happening to the teats. The good visibility means I can see if there is blood in the milk, and I can see potential problems BEFORE they actually become problems! I like the durability of the Silclear liners, and the fact that it is a one-piece silicone liner"
